

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Stricken Physically, Real Hero Of Democratic Convention

BY FRAZER EDWARDS (United Press Staff Correspondent) United Press Headquarters, Waldorf Hotel, New York, July 7.—(By the United Press)—No matter whether his candidate wins or loses, Franklin D. Roosevelt stands out as the real hero of the Democratic Convention of 1924. Adversity has lifted him above the bickering, the religious bigotry, the conflicting personal ambitions and petty sectional prejudices. It has made him the one leader commanding the respect and admiration of delegates from all sections of the land. Stricken two years ago at the zenith of his career with infantile paralysis, he refused to concede the defeat that a weakman would have accepted as fate. He merely smiled and fought back. It was a genuine smile with the gameness of generations of American blood and breeding behind it. From a lithe, athletic figure, standing six feet two and tipping the beam of 100, with the head of a Greek God, he has become half a man physically. That handsome head—with a new expression—that magnificent torso are still his, but the long, straight, sturdy legs that carried him so nonchalantly through street parades in the disastrous Democratic campaign of 1920, are gone. They have shriveled to mere stumps and only by the aid of steel braces and crutches can he walk. But the determination that knows no defeat has won him back a long way on the road to recovery. And despite his infirmities, he took charge of Governor Smith's campaign. Those who have watched him in the convention and at conferences of leaders, now know why Al Smith picked Roosevelt to guide his political destiny. His wise and aggressive campaign has fired the admiration of all, but his own conduct has been the real marvel of the convention. Roosevelt might be a pathetic, tragic figure, but for the fine courage that flashes in his smile, it holds observers enthralled. They forget the tortured progress that he makes on crutches, dragging his legs as he makes his way down the aisle of the convention hall. That smile holds a spiritual grace that is lacking when Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy. Then he appeared to reveal (Continued on Page Seven)

MAY BREAK DEADLOCK TONIGHT: DELEGATES RELEASED FROM PLEDGES

Action Late In Day Is Adopted After Bitter, Hard-Fought Struggle

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, July 7.—(By The Associated Press)—By action of the Democratic National Convention itself today all delegates were released from pledges and instructions on presidential candidates. The action of the convention did not affect the two-thirds rule or the unit rule. By its action, the convention approved the stand of the fifteen minority candidates including Governor Smith. Mr. McAdoo's counter proposal did not come up for a vote. The resolution upon the adoption of which the convention voted was as follows: "Resolved, that the time has arrived when, in the opinion of this Democratic convention, all delegates should be and are hereby released from any pledges or instructions of any kind whatsoever, touching upon any candidacy for the nomination for president."

Democratic Convention Headquarters, New York, July 7.—(By the United Press)—Hours of conferences over the Sunday adjournment period in which every means was resorted to in futile efforts on the part of anti-McAdoo leaders to break the long convention deadlock, brought forth two proposals on which the convention will act when it convenes today. The first of these proposals, endorsed by or in behalf of all the delegates except McAdoo, calls for action by the convention itself to compel the unconditional release of the McAdoo delegates.

The other proposal was drafted by McAdoo, who, believing that the release of the delegates in itself would not solve the deadlock, suggested:

1. That the unit rule be abrogated, thereby releasing all delegates to vote as they choose.
2. That the majority rule be substituted for the two-thirds rule, enabling a candidate to be nominated by a bare margin of those voting.
3. That after each ballot beginning today, the candidate receiving the lowest vote should be dropped from the roll until a nomination is made.
4. That each delegate present shall be able to vote his preference of the delegates who have gone home.

These two plans emerged from the conferences of candidates' representatives which started Saturday evening, were resumed Sunday afternoon, and concluded early this morning. The idea was to agree upon some compromise candidate or limited group of candidates from whom a selection could be made, and from which list McAdoo and Smith would be barred at the outset.

Saturday night's conference, however, developed that McAdoo's contention "I have the most delegates of any candidate; why should I withdraw?" precluded the possibility of selecting a compromise ticket. To better all thought was concentrated on a course of procedure that would break the deadlock and the procedure had as its first objective, elimination of McAdoo. To this end the "dark horse" representatives met yesterday afternoon and drafted the resolution calling on all candidates to release their pledged delegates. This was signed by everyone, headed by Al Smith, and then presented to McAdoo. It was a clever move, and placed him in an embarrassing predicament. If he released delegates held to him under the unit rule or other pledges, his losses might be such as to have a psychological reaction on the convention, distinctly detrimental to his cause. If he refused the proposal he would be as he now is, accused by his opponents of blocking efforts to end the deadlock.

He asked for additional time, and finally presented his counter-proposal as outlined above. The harmony conference then had two questions before them and realizing they could not make an unanimous report on either, decided to submit both to the convention in the form of a report. Meanwhile, the delegates of all candidates save McAdoo were free to vote as they chose beginning with the first ballot today. There is no action of the convention itself that can force a change in the voting procedure of McAdoo's delegates. So, with the opening of the seventeenth session and the calling of the seventy-eighth roll, the situation was precisely as it was Saturday with the single exception that delegates voting for Al Smith and the favorite sons are released and may vote as they wish. Most of them are expected to cast their votes exactly as they have heretofore.

AGE OLD BATTLE OF EAST AND WEST BACK OF DEADLOCK; SEE LITTLE HOPE FOR PEACE

(BY DAVID LAWRENCE) (Copyright, 1924)

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, N. Y., July 7.—East is east and west is west and apparently never the twain shall meet in Democratic politics. The age-old fight between Tammany Hall and its affiliated organizations of boss control in New Jersey, Massachusetts and Illinois came to a head in the Clark-Wilson fight of 1912 and again in the San Francisco convention of 1920 and today it is the underlying reason for the deadlock which has prevented the Democratic national convention from making a presidential nomination, after two weeks of acrimonious sessions. Bitterness, however, is of unprecedented intensity. Discourtesy to each other almost to the point of contempt, anger and wrath which has at times almost resulted in fist fights, (Continued on Page Seven)

Gale Forces Flyer Down

TOKIO, July 7.—(United Press).—Major MacLaren, British round-the-world flyer, reached Kusunimura, forty miles northwest of here, at two p. m. today after a difficult flight from Kusunimura.

MacLaren was forced down on the coast at Asumi, near Kusunimura, late yesterday when he ran short of fuel lacking a severe gale. A supply of gasoline and oil was rushed from Kusunimura, enabling him to proceed to the latter base shortly before dusk.

Sympathy of Delegates To Coolidge Finally Is Expressed in Resolution

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, July 7.—(By the United Press)—As the first order of business today the Democratic National Convention rose to its feet as one man, in unanimous approval of a resolution of sympathy to President and Mrs. Coolidge, whose son, Calvin Jr., lies critically ill in Washington. The resolution, offered by Charles R. Wilson, of the West Virginia delegates, read that it was the sense of all Democratic delegates to extend sympathy to the President and Mrs. Coolidge and expressed hope for the speedy recovery of their son.

SOCIALIST PARTY FACES TASK OF NOMINATING

CLEVELAND, O., July 7.—(By the Associated Press)—The Socialist party of America went into the second day of its national convention here today confronted with the task of electing and voting upon a report from a special committee of fifteen recommending that it endorse the independent presidential candidacy of Senator Robert M. La Follette.

The committee voted 13 to 2 to make the recommendation. The fact that it was composed of outstanding leaders of the party, selected by the convention yesterday from 21 delegates nominated from the floor and voted upon by the individual delegates, was considered significant of the probable outcome of the discussion. It was indicated that the debate would probably last for several hours. Opponents of the plan were prepared to argue against the report from every possible angle and it was reported there would be no attempt to shut off debate. Upon the vote, when it comes, will depend whether the party will align itself with La Follette and fail to nominate a national ticket for the first time since its organization or continue its regular course and seek votes for candidates of its own choosing.

Morris Hillquit, New York, and Victor Berger, congressman from Milwaukee, will be leaders of the fight for the committee report. They said in the convention last Friday and Saturday of the conference for progressive political action and concurred in the report that endorsed La Follette for the presidency, postponed a vice presidential nomination and provided for the organization of a new national political party next January.

Alaskan Ry. Head Resigns, Is Rumor, Over Action Of Work

ANCHORAGE, ALASKA, July 7.—(By the Associated Press)—Following the reinstatement of the superintendent, and resident physician of the Alaska Railroad by Secretary Work after being dismissed by Colonel Lee H. Landis, manager of the railroad, an unconfirmed rumor here was that Colonel Landis had tendered his resignation.

Colonel Landis refused to comment on the rumor. Captain John Hughes, head of the supply department and close friend of Colonel Landis, said that "Colonel Landis is not running the railroad for any town. He had orders from Washington, D. C., to retrench to the core and has been doing it."

The reinstatement order from Secretary Work came after employees of the railroad and citizens bombarded the secretary with cablegrams requesting that the orders be rescinded. United States secret service men for the past fortnight have been investigating the management of the railroad at the request of Secretary Work.

It has been rumored that the dismissal of the department heads was caused because of their alleged criticism of Colonel Landis' management. "I'm not running a pension bureau," declared Manager Landis to a meeting of the Anchorage Times Staff. He declined to state how far the dismissals will be carried.

Seek Minister's Report On Roumanian Law

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 7.—(By the United Press)—The American minister to Roumania, Peter Augustus Jay has been ordered to return to the United States to report to the state department on the new Roumanian oil law against which this country has strenuously protested. It was learned at the state department today.

Jay, strictly speaking, is not being recalled, and it is presumed he will return to his post after conferences here. It is the understanding that this government will take no further action regarding the oil law question, until Jay makes his report.

Ralston Looms As Hope Of Nomination Tonight Is Advanced

ROBERT J. BENDER UNITED PRESS STAFF CORRESPONDENT

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, July 7.—A nomination for the presidency by the Democratic National Convention appeared within the range of possibilities tonight when balloting will be resumed. The convention recessed shortly before 4 o'clock this afternoon after having taken its 83rd ballot without result. The delegates will convene again at 8:30 this evening after a series of conferences between the leaders and there is high hope that a nominee will be chosen before another adjournment is taken.

The way opened for the sliding of Wm. G. McAdoo out of the convention during the afternoon. The convention adopted the report of the conference peace committee which released, in so far as the convention is concerned, the delegates from all pledges and obligations to individual candidates. McAdoo had refused to concur in such a recommendation, but with its adoption the way was open for swings away from the Californian, as the action of the convention gives the delegates an alibi for use at home. Samuel M. Ralston now appears as a strong possibility for the nomination. Pat Harrison of Mississippi, is authority for the statement that representatives of eight delegations met this afternoon and decided on a Ralston "ride" tonight providing everything goes according to program.

The vote on the motion by Mr. Gilchrist was 955 in its favor and 105 against it, and eight not voting. It was 258 more than required to pass it. Chairman Walsh stated his interpretation of the resolution. It does not abrogate the unit rule, which prevails wherever it was ordered. It merely expresses the sense of the convention that instructions and pledges are laid ought no longer to be binding; the idea being that when instructions and pledges were given it was anticipated that nomination would be made in a reasonable time and a reasonable number of ballots.

No delegate, the chairman said, would be subject to legitimate criticism for not changing his vote if he wished to do so. The convention then plunged into the 83rd ballot and the effect of the resolution just adopted was watched with the greatest interest. The McAdoo people passed the word that McAdoo wanted all his people to vote for the resolution as he did not wish to appear as an obstructionist. The result was that the votes in favor of the motion were assured before the roll call was half over. The effect of releasing delegates from instructions and pledges, while retaining the unit rule and the two-thirds rule, will be developed in the balloting immediately.

There are delegates in the convention instructed by state conventions or party caucuses who say they are ready to change their votes. The strategy now is to beat McAdoo down below the 400 mark until he no longer controls a veto power in the convention. Several conferences as to maneuver in behalf of Ralston will be held between now and the time the convention reassembles.

Ralston is insistent that he be regarded as out of the convention. Taggart was busy all afternoon asking delegates not to vote for him. It is entirely likely therefore that he will receive few votes on the early ballots tonight. Taggart does not want to bring his out until McAdoo and Smith are definitely killed off. If the search of other delegations for a compromise continues, however, and Ralston shows the silent strength that is claimed for him, a display of this strength in balloting is practically certain to test out his general vote gathering ability.

Backed into a corner by the strategy of the combined forces of Governor Al Smith and all the "dark horses" McAdoo is staking everything on his personal "battalion of death" whose loyalty in maintaining his veto power will be tested today.

When the convention began the third week of its deliberations this morning, there were two proposals before the delegates representing the net results of the week-end adjournment taken Saturday afternoon to enable representatives of the various candidates to develop a plan for breaking the deadlock. After several conferences by the individual managers, Chairman Walsh called the convention to order shortly before 11:30 p. m. Rev. Wm. L. Phillips, assistant pastor of the Little Church Around The Corner, delivered the invocation, and the eighteenth session of the 1924 convention was under way. A great majority of the delegates and alternates appeared to still be here, but there was an increasing number of vacant chairs in the delegates' section.

The report of Chairman Hall of the Democratic National Committee offering the proposal of all candidates before the convention, except McAdoo, to release their delegates from any pledge or obligation to the respective candidates, was presented to the convention by Chairman Walsh.

After reading the majority proposal, Chairman Walsh presented the counterproposal of W. G. McAdoo. There was no applause at the conclusion of the formula presented by all candidates with the exception of McAdoo and there was scattered applause among the McAdoo delegations at the conclusion of the McAdoo formula.

J. Bruce Kramer, spokesman for McAdoo, moved that the rules be suspended and the report of the resolutions submitted by Chairman Walsh be referred to the committee on rules. Looks like the Democratic convention isn't the only place where it's hot. Your's Truly can think of two more—and one of 'em's Portsmouth. Try this over on your thermometer: OHIO—Partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday. Freshy local showers. Slightly warmer Tuesday. The extremes in local temperature are: High, 55; low, 64.

Nation's Chief Bows In Prayer as Son's Battle for Life Weakens in Crises

BY DALE VAN EVERY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 7.—(By the United Press)—The president of the United States prayed today at the bedside of his younger son.

Only a little better than a fighting chance for life remained for Calvin Coolidge, Jr., doctors agreed at 9:30 o'clock.

Not as the nation's chief executive, but as a father, knowing in full measure a father's grief just as it comes to the humblest in the land—Mr. Coolidge brought the simple, rugged New England faith of his ancestors to ask that his son be spared.

With the president was Mrs. Coolidge, nearly worn out with anxiety and sorrow for the son she loves, and whom the finest surgeons of Washington are almost powerless to aid.

Dorothy of the White House and all thoughts of coming political strife, have been laid aside for the moment. The Coolidges, as any other father and mother would, watch at the bedside where a spark of life still flickered feebly this morning. Their boy was unconscious of their presence. In every corner of the land, fathers and mothers of the nation, sorrowed with them. Twice Sunday, encouraged by optimistic reports from six physicians, who are fighting the septic poison that is sapping 16-year-old Calvin's vitality, the president turned to thoughts of his office, only to hurry again to the Walter Reed Hospital as sinking spells sapped the boy's vitality. Finally, the Coolidges remained all night at the hospital, most of the time at their son's bedside. A "bare fighting chance" was all the doctors held out. A blood transfusion failed to aid Calvin, Jr. As a last resort, saline solution was to be injected in a desperate effort to strengthen the blood against the creeping poison. A full consultation has been called for 10:30 a. m.

PARENTS SEE SON KILLED WHEN HE RUNS INTO PATH OF AUTO

Ralph Burchett, Aged 3, Is Victim; Fatality Occurs On Trail; Driver Blameless

Running directly into the path of an automobile owned and driven by Franklin W. Bowman of Pleasantville, O., little Ralph Burchett, three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Burchett of Seilo Trail just beyond the Herns farm was struck and instantly killed Sunday afternoon about 1:30 o'clock, the fatal accident occurring almost in front of the home and Burchett place of business with the father and mother as eye witnesses to the tragic affair. The father picked up the injured child and was rushed by automobile to Hempstead hospital where a physician announced that the child had died a short time before.

Coroner Virgil Fowler was called and found that death was due to a fracture at the base of the skull. Bowman, who had been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Cooper, 2531 Gallia street, surrendered to Sheriff Harry Dunham at Hempstead hospital but was not held when that official investigated and found death driver held blameless.

was purely accidental. Bowman told Sheriff Dunham he would remain at the Cooper home until after Coroner

Fowler had completed his investigation. Last night Coroner Fowler informed Bowman that no blame could be attached to him and that he could proceed on his return trip home. He was enroute home when the accident occurred.

An examination of the machine showed that part of the fender between the mudguard and body of the car had struck the child's head. Later shreds of clothing were found on the front part of the frame. This indicates the machine ran over the child, the wheels not touching the little body after it was knocked down. Others near the scene of the accident were of the opinion that the machine knocked the child to the side of the road, but Mr. Bowman, the driver, says that he is sure the machine passed over the body.

No Time To Give Warning According to the father of the accident victim the child was playing about a machine that had stopped a few feet north of the filling station, this machine containing several children. There was a machine in front of the station having its tank filled, the father serving this patron when the child ran onto the paved road from the station side of the road.

The father says that he did not have time to call a warning to the child. Last night he said that he thought probably the child would get clear of the machine before it reached that point but that the driver swerved to the left hand side of the road and caught the child with part of the left fender, less than three feet from the left curb of the road. The father picked up the child in his arms and was taken to the hospital by Ray Hodge, Chillicothe street barber, who had a machine near the filling station. Mr. Burchett stated last night that he believed the child died when he picked him up. Dr. Albert Derrid attended the accident victim on arrival at the hospital. Bleeding at the mouth and ears indicated a serious fracture.

Had Slowed Down When seen by Coroner Fowler last night Bowman said that the best he could recollect he was only making about 20 miles per hour in his Maxwell coupe, explaining that machines were going both ways and that he had just slowed down to pass a machine south of the filling station, this machine having a flat tire with men in the road making repairs. He said that the machine in front of the filling station obscured from view the child running along the north side of the filling station and that the first thing he knew the child darted into the middle of the road from behind the machine stopped in front of the filling station. Bowman says that he sent his machine to the left of the paved road in an effort to go around the child. He claims he stopped within 50 feet of the spot where the child was struck.

Mr. Bowman left his machine and returned to the scene of the accident the father by this time having the child up in his arms. He then went to the hospital with Dan Voorhees of 1709 Robinson avenue, the Sheriff being called to the hospital.

Mr. Voorhees, who was walking north on the trail just a few feet south of the filling station was another eye witness to the accident. He stated last night that the driver of the machine was going about 20 miles per hour and that he suddenly shot his machine to the left side of the road as the child ran onto the paving from the right side of the road. Mr. Voorhees said that it looked purely unavoidable to him. Mr. Burchett told Coroner Fowler that he judged the speed of the Bowman machine to have been between 20 and 25 miles per hour.

Two Women In Car

Two young women, Miss Birdie Baker of Pleasantville, ten miles north of Lancaster and Miss Sully Lake of Huntington, were in the machine with Bowman. Miss Baker is a niece of Mr. Cooper. Miss Lake came to Portsmouth to accompany Mr. Bowman and Miss Baker to Pleasantville for a visit. Mr. Bowman is a garage man at Pleasantville. He left today for home.

The Burchett child would have been 3 years of age Thursday of this week. It was born near Louisville, Ky., the family moving to this county about a year ago. They lived on the Jewett farm several months and have had the gasoline filling station since September. The home is on the hillside above the filling station.

Besides the parents, Troy and McDora Burchett, three brothers, Marvin 11, Wayne 8, and Talmadge 3, survived. The Burchett home was crowded all evening with friends of the family who came to extend sympathies.

Woman Attends Klan Meeting; Gives Birth to Child in Auto

ASHLAND, KY., July 7.—The Klan Klan held a big initiation at Old Orchard, everything coming off on schedule—with one exception—the advent of baby girl, born to Mrs. A. D. Brun, in the lounge of a Chevrolet touring car. Mrs. Brun was an interested witness of the celebration when taken sick.

A crowd of sympathetic but apparently inexperienced women gathered around her car, but it required for a nurse man, Cole H. McKinney, life insurance agent, with offices in the Ashland National Bank, to prove the real hero of the emergency. Mr. McKinney was on duty one medical student, and when he learned of the woman's plight he immediately went to her assistance. A Knight of the K. K. What you get in a drop of gasoline:

Quick starting
Flying pick-up
Solid power, mileage

Engineers tell how to save 30% on gasoline

—and get greater power from motor, greater flexibility

Now you can get all the power your motor was built to deliver. And still save 30% of what you now pay for gasoline in a year! Careful engineering tests prove both statements.

Power units in gas

Now you have gasoline refined, or "built" to the ideal specifications pictured above. For all gasoline is composed of combustible units. The first 10% give quick starting. The second 10% give instant pick-up. The rest give solid pulling-power, speed, mileage. Above we give a chart showing how this might be analyzed.

PUROL gasoline is accurately refined to contain combustible units in this perfect relationship for power and economy. It gives the ready starting, the flying pick-up, the sturdy power you want.

30% savings proved

For 2 years our engineers have tested PUROL in 38 different cars. Records of these tests prove:

- 1 That PUROL gives 3.3% greater mileage.
- 2 That PUROL burns cleanly—does not drip down into crank-case. 14.2% of gasoline saved this way.

- 3 That saving of lubricating oil in this way amounts to $2.98 a year.
- 4 That saving in general repairs, because of undiluted lubricating oil, averages $10.33 a year.

The average car consumes 500 gallons of gas a year. So the first two savings—87½ gallons at 20¢—total $17.50. The four savings show a yearly total of $30.81. 30% of the annual gasoline cost for the average car!

Test in your own car

Make a test of PUROL Gasoline. Feel your motor respond with greater power, greater flexibility. And at the end of a year you'll find that it has saved a substantial sum for you.

PUROL quality never varies. Our rigid specifications are strictly maintained. You can count on it today or 5 years from today.

Accident Occurred Near Old Golf Grounds; Crowd Thrilled When Plane Falls; Victims Are Not Seriously Hurt

Lieutenant Paul Riddle, 23 and his passenger, Walter Crabtree, 29, a local truck driver, are alive today, all because the Canuck plane, which they occupied late Sunday afternoon, will float. When the pilot lost control of the plane, while attempting to make a landing, the big machine plunged into the Ohio river about 100 feet from shore and at the upper end of the golf grounds, East Portsmouth. The huge crowd, which had gathered to watch the planes take up passengers all afternoon, was electrified when the machine suddenly went into what is known as a power spin and before Lieutenant Riddle could right it the plane plunged into the Ohio river. Realizing his danger, Lieutenant Riddle quickly released his safety belt and the one which strapped Crabtree to the front seat of the plane. Crabtree was stunned by the fall and perhaps would have drowned had not Lieutenant Riddle kept his head above water until the two men were rescued.

Auto In Readiness

When Lieutenant Riddle and Crabtree reached shore, Norval B. Griffin, of the Seely Shoe Company, who had been witnessing the flights, had his automobile in readiness and the two men were hurriedly driven to Schirman hospital. There it was learned that neither man was seriously injured. Lieutenant Riddle suffered a deep cut over his forehead and slight bruises on the back of the head. Crabtree suffered a bruised right elbow and multiple bruises about the head and back. It was rumored that both men had drowned and a crowd of several thousand people gathered soon after it was reported that the big plane had figured in an accident.

Gives Version of Fall

Propped up in bed with his head swathed in bandages, Lieutenant Riddle gave a "bang" when his version of the accident was followed. "I was just about to land near the edge of the bank, when I saw women and children running towards my machine. I saw I could not land there and, as I tried to maneuver the machine to a new spot, I must have temporarily lost control of it and it went into what we call a motor or power spin. I almost righted the machine, but before we could reach the shore the plane plunged into the river. I quickly released my belt and then looked after Crabtree. The fall seemed to daze him and I lay his head above water until a boat reached us from shore. The plane will not sink for four or five hours and I knew that all I had to do was to look after Crabtree. Believe me we were happy when we arrived safely on shore. We must have floated down the river 300 feet before the row boat reached us. It seemed like an hour to me and it looked like 10,000 people were standing on the shore to see if we were hurt. I did everything I ever knew about a plane to right it in time to prevent the fall, but was lucky in hitting the river and not the bank. Had the plane crashed into the bank we probably would not be alive today."

Mr. Crabtree Talks

"It all happened so quickly I did not realize the plane was falling until it struck the river. My head was thrown against something and I was in a dazed condition when Lieutenant Riddle released my safety belt. I held onto the plane and when I saw that it was not going to sink I knew we were safe. I can swim and several times I thought of trying to swim to shore, but Lieutenant Riddle held onto me until the rescue boat arrived and I was never so glad to see anything in my life."

Crabtree is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Crabtree, of Sedan, West Side. He drives a truck for the Bakerite Baking company, Eighth and Campbell avenue.

Home in Pikeville

Lieutenant Riddle, whose home is in Pikeville, Ky., said last night that he had figured in several other accidents while flying. Last spring his plane went into a motor spin while flying around Ashland and the machine fell, but was not badly damaged and Riddle was only slightly hurt. He almost righted the machine before it fell into a ditch. Lieutenant Riddle has had several years of experience in flying, as he was formerly attached to the Wilbur Wright field in Dayton, the aviation field at Lawton, Okla., and the Kelly field, at San Antonio, Texas.

Within ten minutes after his accident yesterday his partner, Truman Taylor, was taking up passengers in his Curtiss machine. "It looked like no spectators were more anxious than ever to go up," Lieutenant Riddle said as he gazed around at the big crowd. "I'm only thankful my machine hit the water and not the bank or it would have been slow music and flowers for us."

Must Overhaul Plane

Lieutenant Riddle is employed by the Burgess Flying company, of Ashland, Ky. He says while the Canuck plane is not badly damaged by the water it will have to be completely overhauled, especially the fuselage or the body. The huge motor will have to be completely overhauled.

Lieutenant Riddle, Gray Bevis and Truman Taylor, fliers for the Burgess Flying company, arrived here last Thursday and took up many passengers from the old golf grounds. Lieutenant Riddle had given Crabtree several stunt features before attempting to make a landing.

"We enjoyed a nose dive, a tail spin, the billow waves, didn't we," Lieutenant Riddle said to Crabtree as they occupied adjoining beds in Schirman hospital last night.

Realized Ambulance Would Be Needed, Griffin Had Car Ready To Take Victims to Hospital

"When I saw Lieut. Riddle's machine swerve to one side as it approached the bank and go into a motor spin I realized that something was going to happen," Norval B. Griffin said Monday in discussing the plane accident yesterday.

"I realized that an ambulance would be needed so I drove my machine to the nearest point where the plane was towed to shore and when the two men reached the bank I placed them in my car and drove them to the Schirman hospital. I soon saw they were not badly hurt. If the plane had hit the bank it would have been a different story to tell."

Mr. Griffin was formerly attached to the Wilbur Wright Field at Dayton and several aviation fields in Texas and has had considerable experience in the aviation game.

John Ainsley, Master Thief

Arthur Somers Roche

Copyright 1924, NEA Service Inc.

Begin Here Today

The war left John Ainsley, a man of education and breeding, unfit for work. Hearty, poverty-stricken, he decided to become a master crook, a super-criminal. To prey upon thieves; that shall be my career," he decides. "For if a thief is robbed, where may he look for redress? His first venture into theft is at the expense of Darazon, a Fifth Avenue jeweler. Now, installed in an apartment in Paris, the sight of all the wealth exhibited in the Place de l'Opera one spring afternoon gives a fillip to his ambition.

Now GO ON WITH THE STORY. I couldn't watch the papers, ascertain where a crime had been committed, and then rob the perpetrators. No one but a detective could hope to find out in this place. And having decided that my only safety lay in working alone, I could hardly cultivate the acquaintance of criminals, and learn their plans in advance. What had seemed, for several weeks, a most excellent theory, because suddenly almost impossible of practice.

And yet the theory was sound. I did not see immediately how to put it into working practice proved nothing against the theory. Still, though I cheered myself with the reflection that Opportunity is never so disguised that keen eyes may learn her identity, I was rather depressed as, dressed for dinner, I left my

Nerves Restored And Sleep Is Sound, Thanks To Peppen

Miss Earnie Alexander, a well known Portsmouth woman living at 1011 Eleventh street, now adds her name to the ever growing list of local people who, after giving Peppen a trial, endorse it as being a medicine of unique cured merit.

"I have read a great many accounts in the Portsmouth papers of the good that Peppen has done, but I know of no case as wonderful as my own," said Miss Alexander. "The medicine has been of untold value to me."

"For years I had been a sufferer with stomach and kidney trouble. I had become very weak and my nerves were always on edge. It seemed impossible for me to eat a hearty meal without having indigestion. Attacks of gas and bloating kept me in constant misery. My sleep was not what it should be and in the morning would ache all over. My back pained me and I would have pain in my limbs and across my shoulders.

"My continued poor health made me depressed in spirits. I became so discouraged and felt as though it was too much trouble to stay alive. But now everything is changed. I started taking Peppen about six weeks ago. After the first week's treatment I felt improved. Then each week found me better than the week before, until now I am in as good health as I have ever been in my whole life. I sleep soundly every night. Get up in the morning fresh and rested, with a good appetite for breakfast. I don't have any more attacks of indigestion and the aches and pains are almost forgotten. Peppen, I know, is a wonderful remedy."

CAUTION: The genuine Peppen is packed in a white and blue carton and may be obtained in Portsmouth only at Fisher & Stroch's Pharmacy. There is a Peppen store in every nearby town.—Advertisement.

Could Hardly Keep On His Feet

Nearby farmer had such dizzy spells he almost fell. Also suffered from chronic indigestion and stomach catarrh and was weak and rundown. Tells how he found relief in "DRECO."

The great herbal remedy Dreco which was recently introduced here through the Dreco Export at Stewart's Cut Rate Drug Store, is growing daily in popularity because of its certain action on the stomach, liver, kidneys, bladder, bowels and the blood. Its powers are great to relieve constipation, dizziness, headaches, and in the stomach, backache and other symptoms. Many people testify as to the results obtained.

Mr. R. M. Burchett, the popular farmer who lives with his 11 children and wife at South Webster near Portsmouth, Ohio, has found Dreco just a little better than he expected and in a recent signed statement has this to say: "I was in a bad rundown condition. I had such dizzy spells I'd almost topple over. I also had pains in my bowels and was so constipated I was always taking pills or cathartics. I was so restless and nervous I couldn't sleep at night and never had any pep and no matter what I ate I'd suffer afterwards because of chronic indigestion and stomach catarrh.

"So many other local people seemed to be helped by Dreco I decided to buy several bottles for myself and after finishing them can say that Dreco surely does the work. I'm feeling so much better I'm like a new man. I'm never bothered with dizzy spells or pains in my bowels now and the latter move regularly twice a day. My nerves are steadied, I sleep better and no matter what I eat my stomach takes care of it. O. K."

For decades physicians have prescribed the same roots, herbs, barks and leaves from which Dreco is made. In Dreco these herbs, are combined with care and skill to produce the best remedy for stomach trouble, constipation, sluggish liver, weak kidneys and to purify the blood.

Call today at The Stewart's Drug Store and ask to talk with Mr. O'Connor the expert from the Dreco Laboratories. He will courteously tell you of the merits of this wonderful remedy. Also he will honestly tell you whether or not he thinks Dreco will benefit you. —Advertisement.

S.S.S. The World's Best Blood Medicine

I pleaded fatigue. The lady who had selected me as her gallant sighed with relief.

"Me, I've danced 'my shoes almost off,'" she said. "I am glad that Monsieur feels not too gay."

I looked at her; I did not even wish to talk to her. But after all, my friends had practically invited her to join us; common courtesy demanded speech. So we talked at random. Little by little I drew from her bits of information about the habits of the place. She had brutally dull humor, and was not sparing in its use. A writer for one of the scandal papers would have revelled in the gross gossip, concerning the great and the near-great, which poured from her lips. For she knew which matron had succumbed to happy charms, and then she emitted a whistle of surprise. She had become intimate with me by now. She gripped my arm, and pointed at a tall, white-haired man who was entering a box on the other side of the floor. In the bright lights that illumined the room I could see him quite clearly. Well groomed, with an easy, assured manner, a certain droop at one corner of his wide mouth seemed to indicate that of the two worlds represented here, the lower had spawned him.

"That," said my fair informant, "is the White Eagle. Monsieur has heard of him, No?"

"Who is he?" I asked.

She shrugged her powdered shoulders. "He is the White Eagle, monsieur. If the name means nothing—" She shrugged again.

I looked again at the box across the floor. The White Eagle had sat down now, and had accepted champagne from the gentleman already there. I observed that gentleman. Gross, vulgar-looking, his ostentation of dress and manner was only equaled by the painted and bejeweled fat old woman who was his companion. I sat them down immediately as persons of immense and recent wealth.

The White Eagle turned his head, and even at that distance I understood why he bore his picturesque appellation. For his nose was a great curved hook. In profile one could not avoid noticing it. That, with his white hair, sufficiently explained his nickname.

"Who is he?" I asked of my companion again.

"Monsieur evidently does not read the Paris papers," she commented.

"With difficulty, mademoiselle," I admitted. "And I have been in Paris only a few months."

"Ah, that explains," she lowered her voice. "The White Eagle, monsieur, was tried for the theft of the Lagan jewels. He was what you call 'acquit,' as he has always been 'acquit,' every time the police try to put him in prison."

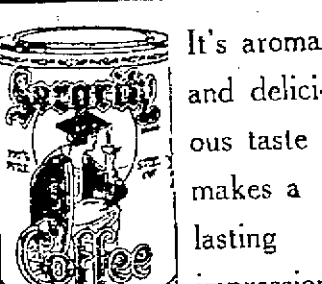

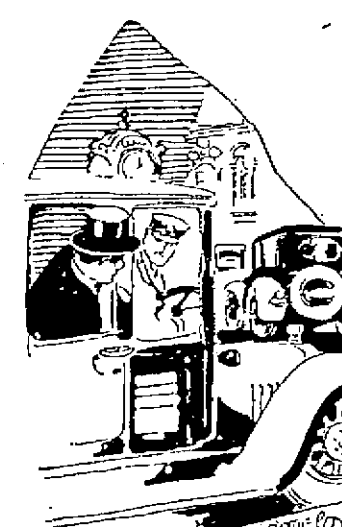

"A criminal!" I said with interest.

She shrugged again. "It has never been proved," she smiled.

I nodded understandingly; I felt a thrill chase up and down my spinal column. Here, perhaps, was that opportunity which I needed. For the White Eagle was hovering around that vulgar couple in the box opposite for reasons, I shrewdly surmised, connected with his profession. I was looking, then, at another of the so-called super-criminals, the class upon which I had determined to prey.

I turned to my companion. "Shall we dance?" I asked.

It's aroma and delicious taste makes a lasting impression.

I MADE THE DRIVER FOLLOW THE CAR AHEAD.

She was tired, but could not afford to offend. We went together upon the floor, and it was not difficult so to maneuver that we remained for fully five minutes close to the box where sat the White Eagle and his prey.

He seemed on familiar terms with his quarry. Indeed, it seemed that he and the other man were discussing some matter of business. I would have given a great deal to overhear their conversation. Some cunning swindle was in the air, I felt assured. And I was confident that I could make that swindle move to my own profit if I could but learn its nature.

But that was impossible. I returned with my partner to our table. As I sat down, I saw the White Eagle rise; kiss with great manner the pudgy hand of the overfed woman opposite, shake hands with her gross husband—the other two must have been married; certainly nothing but that insupportable relation would make them endure each other's company—and leave the box.

A moment later the other two rose. The man draped about the fat and wrinkled shoulders of his companion a cane of emeralds that must have cost two hundred thousand francs. He handed a bank-note to his waiter, and the servant's forehead almost touched the floor in the excess of the gratitude.

I too rose abruptly. I pleaded a sudden headache of a severity too great to be endured. I refused, almost harshly, the offers of my two hosts to escort me home. I would not dream, I told them, of cutting short their evening's entertainment. And so they let me go.

I gained my hat and coat from the cloak-room, and raced out into the lobby of the dance-hall in time to see the couple whom I was following enter a limousine. I hailed a taxi and bade the driver follow the car ahead. I did not wish to do anything so crude as this, but I could not follow on foot, and I wished to know where the friends of the White Eagle were stopping.

I found out in a few minutes, when their car stopped before the Meurice. I dismissed my taxi and entered into conversation with the hotel porter. From him, without difficulty, and without arousing suspicion, I learned the name of the couple who had just entered the hotel. Then I turned and walked to my apartment in the Rue Dauphine.

Please Do Your Coal Shopping Now

Prudent consumers are buying their fall and winter coal at this time. Coal is cheap today, because the selling price at the mines, in many cases, is below the cost of production. Some mines have shut down, and this means that any change in coal prices is certain to be upward.

Ample transportation facilities are available to move your coal now. Before October, the traffic peak will be reached as the big grain and other agricultural movements get under way. Then the railroads will be taxed to the limit of their carrying capacity.

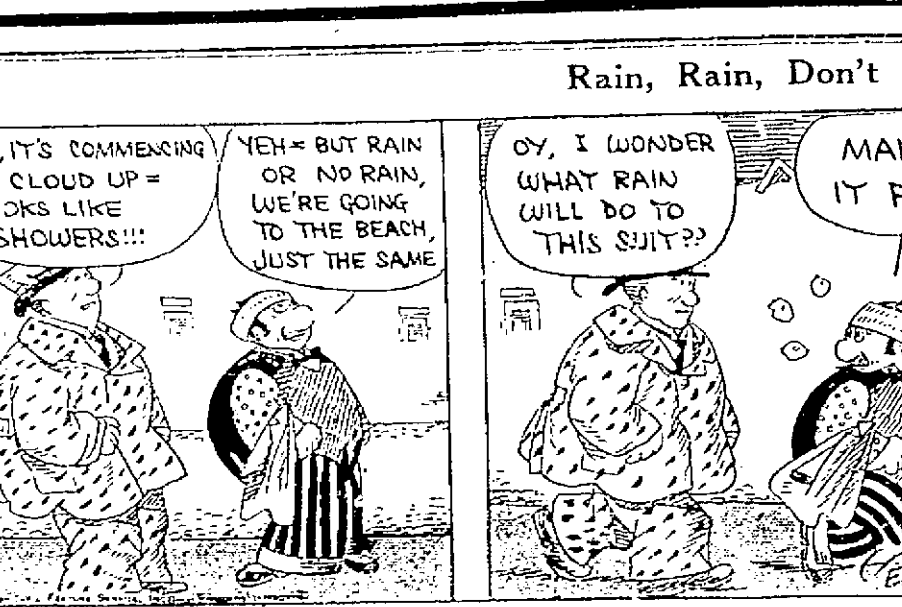

On the heels of the heavy traffic this fall will come winter with its storms and blizzards. This, naturally, will slow up transportation.

People must have fuel; it must move over the railroads sometime during the year. I strongly advise all consumers to take advantage of the present situation to purchase their coal while the price is low and at a season when the railroads can handle the traffic expeditiously.

Co-operation on the part of industries and householders in storing their coal this summer will make available thousands of cars in the season of their greatest demand, and will mean a better satisfied public and more efficient railroad operation.

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, wees, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Dolly—I have a suggestion to offer to the promoters of "Midway Park" that come one is trying to get started between Linton and Portsmouth, that I would like to pass along to the promoters if there are any promoters interested in a park like this. Dolly, some one said that we had the traction and the bus line running past where they wanted the park located and I guess that they forgot about our "Beautiful Ohio River." Now I think it would be a fine thing to put on an excursion boat to run between the two cities and the park every so often, and if the river ever gets too low for that they can fall back on the motor boats. We don't get half the pleasure out of the Ohio river that we should, and I don't see why some of the enterprising men who have money lying idle don't get busy and invest a little of it in something that will not only make money for them, but will be a source of beauty and joy forever and also afford a great deal of pleasure for those who cannot afford to go to larger cities to visit places of this kind.

PROGRESSIVE READER.
I think your suggestion about the excursion boat is a good one. I also think it would be wise to have a boat here all summer so that clubs and private parties could use it for meetings and little excursions during the warm weather season of meeting in balls, lodge rooms, homes, etc. I believe it would be a paying investment for the owners of the boat.

Dear Dolly—Will you please tell me how to make perfume out of roses or any other flowers.
YOUR LITTLE READER.
The perfume of different flowers may be extracted by a very simple process, and without any apparatus. Gather the flowers, the perfume of which you desire to obtain, with as little stalk as possible, and place them in a jar three parts filled with olive oil or almond oil. After 24 hours turn them out in a coarse cloth, and squeeze all the oil from them. Throw away the freshly gathered flowers, throw or four times, according to the strength of the perfume desired. The oil being thoroughly impregnated with the volatile particles of the flowers, is then to be mixed with an equal quantity of pure rectified spirit, and shaken every day for two weeks. It may then be poured off, when it will be found beautifully scented and fit for use.

Dear Dolly—I have a mirror that needs repairing and I would like for you to tell me how to fix it. I think a few drops of quick-silver would be all right, don't you?

MRS. N. Y. Z.
Pour upon a sheet of tin-foil three drops of quick-silver to the surface foot of foil. Rub smartly with a piece of buck-skin until the foil becomes brilliant. Lay the glass upon a flat table, face downward, place the foil upon the damaged portion of the glass, lay a sheet of paper or foil, and place upon it a flat surface, and put upon it sufficient weight to press it down tight; let it remain in this position a few hours, when the foil will adhere to the glass.

Dear Dolly—We have a large cistern that we use to catch rain water for laundry purposes and half of the time it is too black to use. Can you tell me of any thing that I could put in to make it clear?

MRS. R. D.
Two ounces of powdered alum and two ounces of borax will clear a twenty-barrel cistern of rain water that is blackened, and in a few hours the sediment will settle, and the water will be clarified and fit for washing.

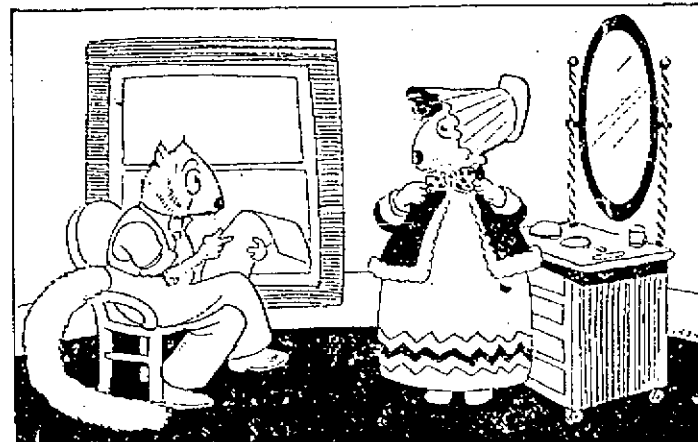

Dear Dolly—We have quite a lot of mint on our place and I have been told that it makes nice vinegar for sauces and meats in winter, and I would like to know how to fix it this way, as we don't have the mint in winter.

COUNTRY HOUSEWIFE.
Put into a wide-mouthed bottle or glass fruit jar, nine clean mint-leaves, enough to fill it loosely; then fill up the bottle with good vinegar, and after it has been covered for two weeks it is to be poured off clear into another jar and kept well covered for use. This is nice to serve with lamb when mint cannot be obtained.

A HOLIDAY FOR THE CRACKNUTS

"We'll just have to go and see what it's all about."

All the wood folk and meadow folk and birdy folk came flocking to see Mister Zip's park in the woods. Where Nanny and Nick were working.

Such a busy place as it was! With the merry-go-round going ding-a-lings, and the roller coaster going rattles, rattles, rattles, and the ferris wheel going, creak, creak, creak, and the children, going dancin'-dancin'-dancin' and all the people shrieking delightedly as the little boats hit the water—it was a noisy place.

"We'll just have to go and see what it's all about," said Mrs. Cracknuts to Daddy Cracknuts. "Here, Daddy, take your gold-headed cane."

"Does it cost anything?" asked Daddy, taking out his old leather pocket-book.

"It says on the bills 'Admission 10 cents,'" said Mrs. Cracknuts. "But I guess we can afford that; I've saved 30 cents on the housework this week by doing my own washing and ironing. I do think I ought to have a holiday."

"Well, that's so, Nanny," said Daddy kindly. "All right, we'll go and see everything we can see for 30 cents. That's a lot of money."

Away went Daddy Cracknuts and his wife to the park, and by and by they came to the big gate with the sign over it which said "Happy Go Lucky Park. Come In."

Daddy brought two tickets from Mister Zip at the ticket window, and then Mister Zip turned a turnstile which only let one person squeeze in at a time.

"Hello, Daddy!" cried Nick. "I thought you were coming. Hello, Mrs. Cracknuts! Will you buy an ice cream cone or a glass of lemonade or a pack of peanuts?"

"Peanuts?" exclaimed Daddy. "That sounds pretty good. I believe I'll have a—"

Here Mrs. Cracknuts pulled her husband's sleeve and whispered something into his ear.

"No, I guess not," said Daddy hastily. "You see, we only have 10 cents. I mean peanuts are awfully bad for us, come on, Ma."

So away went the old squirrel gentleman and his wife to see all the sights of Happy Go Lucky Park.

Pretty soon they came to the ferris wheel. You know what that is, a big wheel as high as a church steeple that goes round ever so slowly, carrying people in funny little seats to see the view.

Only Mister Zip's ferris wheel was only about as high as a corn stalk, for Happy Go Lucky Park was very little place.

The Woodchuck boys had just been up for a ride when Daddy and his wife came along.

"Himselfers, you ought to go up in the ferris wheel," cried Wobbly Woodchuck. "You can see the whole world nearly from the top. I'm still dizzy."

Mrs. Cracknuts pulled Daddy's sleeve again and whispered. "Why, yes, I guess we can take a ride," said Daddy. "Five cents a ride! All right. I'll take two tickets."

Nanny helped them on.

SAYS

With the reduction of all $27.50 quality silk socks to $25.00 at The Fashion, comes a rapid migration from the store of beautiful sports and silk frocks. That little two piece sports frock with the black blouse, collared, cuffed, and embroidered in white and with the white plaited skirt will surely find a new owner tomorrow. And that lovely Chinese frock, with knee length tunic of cherry red has pagodas and mandarin's in everything lightly sketched on it, will accompany its new owner on a vacation trip to mountain or lake ere long.

Reader, I could fill several columns telling you about these lovely frocks. But—ah me! I am only allowed this little space each day. So suppose you come down and see these yourself. You'll wax as enthusiastic as I do over these beautiful garments.

Flip stood up with his front paws on the railing and barked loudly. It seemed that he knew that his little master was entering into a new and thrilling adventure. The captain of the sailing vessel patted the dog on the head and whispered, "Your master will be all right, old fellow."

Jack, in the meantime, kept climbing down and he finally reached the bottom step of the rope ladder. Then he looked down and saw that he was about four feet from the ground of the iceberg. The sailors realized this, too, and one of them shouted, "Just let yourself drop. It won't hurt you." (Continued.)

thirds nominating heads, progressive elimination from each successive ballot of the candidate receiving the lowest vote, and full strength voting by state delegations regardless of how many members may be absent.

At a session of the conference which ended early today subject to call, the McAdoo proposal received no support from any other quarter. It was not made clear whether a simple majority of two-thirds would be necessary for the convention to act on either proposal or whether it could merely express a desire one way or another.

The lineup behind the two proposals in the conference proved to be representative of the solidified divergence which appeared in the concluding hours of Saturday's session, which put Smith up to 368 votes on the 76th and left him at the finish on 77th, with 367, exactly the number required to block a nomination under the two-thirds rule.

After the conference, however, spokesmen for the McAdoo camp said they had no intention of trying to prevent a vote by the convention on the proposal of the others for action releasing all delegates from obligations to candidates.

While his counter proposal was being considered by the conference Mr. McAdoo, in an address before a rally of delegates who had supported him throughout the six days of balloting, declared he "would feel like the most contemptible traitor alive" if he "deserted" them at this time and "must stay and fight to the finish so as not to betray a trust."

He was in the race, he said, to carry out the mandate of the people, expressed in their state conventions, and he reiterated again and again that he did not intend to withdraw.

A resolution pledging the delegates anew to the support of the Californian was adopted after his address, which had been preceded by a hour of discussion during which almost every mention of his name was wildly cheered and plans were advanced to organize his women supporters more closely to work for his nomination. The rally was arranged, it was emphasized, at a suggestion from the McAdoo campaign headquarters by leaders in various state delegations.

The question of selecting a compromise candidate was kept in the obscure background of possible ways out of the difficulty during all of the week-end conferences and after the adjournment early today as a final extreme measure even if the convention should give specific authority for its consideration. None of those taking part he said, "considered it our function to discuss any compromise candidate."

The initiative in the proposal for releasing candidates was taken yesterday by the representatives of the four-state bloc of "about fifty" in his votes on the liquor issue in Congress and elsewhere.

Newton D. Baker is now the hope of Ohio since James M. Cox withdrew. Senator Glass, of Virginia, has himself urged his delegation to go to McAdoo, but the story is that Thomas Fortune Ryan has more influence in that delegation than Glass and that the delegation is more inclined to favor either Davis or Underwood than McAdoo. If the latter comes to abandon his favorite son, it is significant that in spite of the talk of Mr. Glass's letter about having his delegation support McAdoo, the document, if there is one, has not been disclosed and the Virginia Senator has not made a public statement of withdrawal, as have Senator Ralston and Mr. Cox.

There remains one other likely candidate—Senator Joseph Robinson, of Arkansas, minority leader of the upper house of Congress. He has some strength with the Smith group and has the endorsement of Ryan as a dry and as a progressive. Arkansas is holding its eighteen votes for him in the hope that when the break-up comes this favorite son may be the compromise. His opportunity, however, will come only after there has been a decision with respect to Davis, Underwood and Baker.

Age Old

has given the convention plenty of excitement, but little promise of harmony even when nominations shall have been made.

The old and new are numerous. He who would be impartial can not but recognize that in many respects the leaders have acted like a lot of school boys. The injection of the K. K. Klan issue has been a factor in the fight, but the McAdoo delegates can not erase the impression that they have been supported by the Klan. "Try as they might the Smith delegates cannot conceal the fact that they believe most of the anti-Smith sentiment is nothing more or less than an anti-Catholic feeling. It has gone to such a point that many leaders of only say the Democratic ticket will be deserted by Catholics generally before any votes will be cast for McAdoo. To this William Jennings Bryan answers that he sees no reason why a man should be nominated, meaning Smith, because of his church and he says that is how the situation is rapidly developing.

The stubbornness that has been keeping the deadlock tight and tends to make it tighter, is, however, not altogether the Protestant-Catholic feeling which has been engendered here. The McAdoo delegates from western and middle states insist that they have been turning election votes to the Democratic ticket more often than have New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, Illinois and Massachusetts, which are the principal states, asking for Smith's nomination. Certainly Pennsylvania never goes Democratic and Illinois almost never. But to this the Smith men make reply that the reason the big states do not go Democratic is that they never elect a candidate who appeals to the eastern states where the McAdoo leaders reside that the east would not support even Woodrow Wilson in 1916 and that the states which contributed to the Democratic victory that year, namely, the west and south, should have the right to name the party leader here.

As if the Klan issue and the sectional feeling were not enough, the attitude of the convention toward some of the prominent men in the party has been hardly one of courtesy. The Smith men hissed and cheered and booed William Jennings Bryan three times the morning of his party, and then when the Smith people wanted the New York Governor to address the convention the McAdoo delegates did the tic-for-tat stunt and refused to vote for the invitation so it was lost. Even Mr. McAdoo wrote a letter to the convention urging that Smith be permitted to speak, but the governor's friends were so angry they objected to a reconsideration. The truth is the McAdoo delegates through the invitation to have the Governor speak was unfair. The convention had just voted down a proposal to have all the candidates speak and the Smith men for some reason or other not yet explained, then put in another resolution inviting Governor Smith alone. It was freely remarked by Smith men that the object of the move was to put the McAdoo men in "a hole" since they couldn't, it was believed, refuse to hear the governor of the state in which the convention was being held particularly when it was his own home town. But they did, and they said that if the governor's in abundant good health and magnificent condition. Even the responsibilities of the Democratic vice presidential nomination failed to give the present touch.

It was not merely sympathy for a big man crippled that caused the great throng in Madison Square to give Roosevelt that only real spontaneous ovation yet accorded any candidate or leader. It was more than the courage that glows in the handsome face. The crowd caught the spirit beneath.

At Smith, ideal of New Yorkers, has been denied the privilege of appearing in person before the convention, but it is doubtful if he would have been able to do so. William G. McAdoo could have been even among his "crusaders" the depth of feeling touched by the gallant Roosevelt. Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, with all his personality, George Brennan, with all his power, Tom Taggart, with all his center, and Cordell Hull, with all his sincerity—none has brought the Garden crowd to its feet in the burst of frenzied cheering that greeted Roosevelt.

Even if the nomination were tendered to him, even if his doctors say that he will be restored fully to health, would he accept it? He would not accept it, but the delegates to this convention, if permitted to break the deadlock in their own way would undoubtedly vote for Franklin D. Roosevelt, with the red badge of courage pinned to his breast.

called at 11 a. m. today to resume its efforts to select a presidential nominee.

With the delegates who have been supporting Governor Alfred E. Smith and all other candidates except William G. McAdoo unconditionally released, permanent Chairman Walsh, who, with Chairman Hull, of the Democratic national committee, was instructed Saturday to confer with the candidates' representatives "for the purpose of reaching an understanding" to break the deadlock had two proposals to report without recommendation.

One unanimously endorsed by or in behalf of all of the candidates except McAdoo calls for action by the convention itself to compel unconditional release of the McAdoo delegates. The other a counter proposal advanced by Mr. McAdoo, provides in conjunction with the release of delegates, for abolition of the unit voting and two-thirds nominating heads, progressive elimination from each successive ballot of the candidate receiving the lowest vote, and full strength voting by state delegations regardless of how many members may be absent.

At a session of the conference which ended early today subject to call, the McAdoo proposal received no support from any other quarter. Fourteen Arraigned; Ten Admit Guilt

Fourteen persons indicted by the grand jury were arraigned before Judge Thomas, in Common Pleas court, Monday morning and ten pleaded guilty, while four denied guilt.

William Howard, 32 years, old, charged with first-degree murder for the killing of Clark Copas, pleaded not guilty and he was remanded to jail without bond, to await trial, which will probably not be held until early in September. Howard is charged with entering the home of Mr. and Mrs. Minor Copas, on Ninth street, Earlytown, on the morning of June 16 and firing four bullets from a revolver into the body of Clark Copas while he was still in bed. The victim succumbed to his wounds next day in a local hospital.

Judicious is said to have been the motive for the tragedy. The accused will be defended by Attorney B. F. Kimble.

Gordon Nance and wife, Robbia Nance, colored, charged with shooting at Fred Austin, negro, with intent to kill, pleaded not guilty, and their trial was assigned for July 15. Attorney J. P. Conates was appointed to defend.

John T. Adkins, West Side, dairyman, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses in connection with the sale of two cows for $300 to Harry Malone on March 1, 1924.

Machine Plunges Through Bridge; Falls Into Creek Near Beaver; Sheriff Looking for Owner

(Special to Times)

Waverly, July 7.—Sheriff Anderson was busy today making an effort to learn the owner of a Ford machine, which plunged into a creek near Beaver last night after it had plowed through one of the guard rails. It is believed that the machine was owned in Jackson. Two men, who occupied the machine, were not badly hurt and were seen in the Pickett neighborhood this morning. The machine was completely wrecked. The car evidently was being driven at an excessive rate of speed when it careened into the creek, which contained only about three feet of water. Two suit cases and a cap were found near the machine today.

ALL ROADS WILL LEAD TO RACELAND, WHICH GETS INTO THE RACING GAME NEXT THURSDAY

Over 500 Horses Are Already on Ground; Record Meet Being Anticipated

(Special To Times) ASHLAND, Ky., July 7.—In a racing way all roads in Kentucky, Southern Ohio and Western West Virginia, now are and will be converging on Raceland, the new track under the management of J. C. Keene, in Greenup county, seven miles from this city. Raceland will be opened for the first time on Thursday next and the indications are that there will be a tremendous crowd present for the inauguration. There is great interest throughout the Tri-State section in the new racing grounds and every one in the Ohio Valley appears to be anxious that the enterprise will be successful from the start.

This section never before has had big time racing and the people are eager for the brand of sport that the patrons of the tracks at Lexington, Louisville and Latonia have enjoyed for years. The fact that the greatest proportion of the 500 and more horses that will participate in the racing at Raceland were shipped from Latonia gives assurance that the contests will be of a high order.

Double assurance in this respect is had from the fact that the racing secretary is none other than Judge William H. Shelley, probably the most able man in his work in America. Judge Shelley arrived in Ashland this afternoon, coming from his home at Louisville and opened his office at Raceland. William H. Shelley, who has charge of the pari-mutuel machine, arrived from his home at Latonia this morning and stated that his crew of nearly

Local Team Beaten By Huntington Boosters

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., July 7.—"Stubby" Carroll held Portsmouth to one fluke hit yesterday, and the Boosters romped off with their sixth consecutive victory by a score of 7 to 1. Right fielder Brannon was the bird that kept Carroll from busting into the Hall of Fame. Brannon registered Portsmouth's only hit in the fifth frame.

Portsmouth looked like anything but a ball club. They were horrible. Nine Civil War veterans from the Old Soldiers' Home would have played a better game than the Ohio delegates did.

The wonder of it all is that Huntington didn't score fifty runs instead of only seven. Jack Grimm, manager of the visiting team, securing Sunday's engagement with the Boosters under the pretext that he had a baseball club that could deliver the goods.

U. S. Athletes Trailing In Olympic Games

(By Henry L. Farrell, United Press Correspondent.)

Watching the Scoreboard

(By United Press) Yesterday's hero—Jimmy Ring—the veteran Philadelphia pitcher, shut out the Giants for their first defeat of this sort this season.

The Giants and Phillies divided a Sunday bill, New York taking the first, 5 to 1, and dropping the second, 2 to 0.

The Yankees made four runs in the sixth and beat Washington, 7 to 4. Ruth got his 22nd homer and two doubles.

Brilliant fielding by Pittsburgh, especially eight difficult chances accepted by Traylor, helped the Pirates beat the Reds, 5 to 2.

Danforth gave Detroit but three hits and the Browns won the final game of the series, 5 to 1.

In a hard-hitting contest, the White Sox emerged victorious over the Indians, 9 to 6.

Beaver Wins From Lucasville

Beaver won over Lucasville 11 to 3. Frederick pitched good ball but was not given air tight support.

Beaver hit the ball at the most opportune times. F. Traylor leading the visitors in the hitting department, Frederick batted 10 of the 12.

Beaver clan, Vanfossen, Beaver's ace in the box, was knocked out in the third, P. Adams finishing the game. The box score:

COLOMBES STADIUM, Paris, July 7.—Trailing Finland and Sweden at the end of the first day's contests, America's Olympic track and field athletes set out today to reverse the standing.

The points scored, after two days had been decided Sunday, stood: Finland, 30; Sweden, 11; United States, 6.

The United States failed to place a man in the 10,000 meter run, which was taken by Willie Uhlola, an American-trained Finn, in world's record time.

The American home and he finished just better than twelfth.

Finland won 37 points in the event, Uhlola ran one of the greatest races in the history of modern Olympics, and did not even know the race was over when he crossed the line. He was setting out strongly on an extra lap when officials caught him.

The Javelin throw was the other final event contested yesterday. This time the victor was Myrta, the powerful Finn, Eugene Olstert, of Notre Dame, took third, providing four points for the United States, while William Neufeldt, of the University of California, was fifth, accounting for two more points. This showing was better than had been expected.

All four Americans entered in the 100 meters qualified—Loren Munk, son, Chet Bowman, Jackson J. Scholtz and Charley Tadlock.

QUESTIONS

1. Can the batsman step out of his box to face his bowler after he has taken his position?—B. D.

2. Can base runners advance on a play in which a base runner is hit by a batted ball, for which he is called out?—R. D.

3. With first and second base occupied and one out, the batsman hits a high fly, which the umpire rules as invalid fly, only to have an outfielder make the play and muff the ball. Do you think the original decision of the umpire is correct?—B. D.

4. Runner on first and one out. The batsman grounds sharply to the first baseman, who catches the ball, retires the runner, then throws the ball to the second baseman, who touches the bag. Is the runner out?—B. D.

5. Has a double play been made?—E. H. F.

ANSWERS

1. Yes. He can, if he requests the umpire to call time before the pitcher has started his delivery.

2. When a base runner is hit by a batted ball, he is immediately out and no runners can advance on the play. The umpire must rule the play as a hit by the batter.

3. If the umpire rules invalid fly, the play is dead. The ball is dead and the runner is out. The play is dead and the runner is out.

4. Only one man has been retired on the play, the batsman. When the first baseman catches the ball, he has removed the force, and mere touching of second base did not complete a double play. In such a case it is necessary to touch the runner.

Substantial Improvement Marks Stock Market Opening

Big Four and West Pennsylvania Power Jumps Four Points to New Level

NEW YORK, July 7.—Brievously the market, based partly on prospective consolidation, held the foundation for a substantial rise in stock prices today. The big four and West Pennsylvania Power jumped four points each and American Water Works one point, all to new high levels for the year.

Persistent buying of "Big Four," which extended its gain to nine points touching a new 1924 record at 129, had a stimulating effect on railroad shares generally. Gains ranging from 1 to 2 points were scored by Atlantic Coast Line, Great Northern preferred, Northern Pacific, Norfolk and Western, Chesapeake and Ohio, and the new accumulation of industrial issues brought corresponding advances in Bethlehem Steel, International Paper, Con Edison and California Petroleum. Foreign exchanges opened steady.

JACKSON
Trexler's Grove, on the Mahoes Pike, a short distance from Jackson, was the scene of an unusually large gathering on Friday to celebrate the Fourth.

The gathering was under the auspices of the Ku Klux Klan, who had built a speakers' platform on the hillside and otherwise made the grove convenient for the day.

Machine loads of people began driving into the city early in the morning and on into the grove. The storm at the noon hour was disheartening at the time, but when the sun came out all the people resumed their ways to the grove in autos and on foot.

Speeches were made during the afternoon and at night a large parade was staged, passing through the principal streets. Most of the parade was on foot, dressed in their full regalia, and red lights threw a peculiar glow over the marchers. The crowd was estimated in the thousands, coming from the surrounding counties and as far away as West Virginia and Kentucky.

TWISTING THE TALE

THE big town can have some mighty small ways, anywise those living in it can.

Listen to this from the New York Herald-Tribune, under the head of "Real Progressivism."

"The one act passed by congress at the last session, which responded to an urgent and universal demand was the tax reduction act. President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon sensed what the country needed most and forced the two houses, much against their will, to lessen the burden of war taxation."

Then follows a column of bunk giving Coolidge credit for other things, for which he has no more responsibility than he has for the tax reduction act.

Now, dwell on the actual situation and see on what small basis the Herald-Tribune tries to mislead and deceive.

Coolidge and Mellon didn't force congress to pass the tax reduction measure. It is known of all men the world over, that congress did that as its own voluntary and free will; did it in spite of the "estimates" of Secretary Mellon that it would bankrupt the treasury; did it right square in Coolidge's face, despite his threat he would veto it passed.

Yes, congress had the bravery to scorn the President's threats and fling the act right in his teeth. He, however, didn't have the courage to veto it.

He approved it, denouncing it as altogether bad, except it did cut taxes; otherwise it was so unscientific and vicious that he was going to have another congress renovate it entirely.

And why isn't Cautious Cal right at that? For wasn't the tax cut written by a Democratic senator, with the work of a Democratic congressman as a basis, and made possible by Democratic members of congress, aided by a few progressive Republicans?

Nothing can come out of Democracy, according to the philosophy of the New England village from which Cal hails, especially if it favor all the people instead of a few millionaires.

AMONG OTHER THINGS

NOT many people, who have time enough to consume, will be wildly inspired by a certain plank in the Democratic platform, which calls for giving the Philippines independence at once.

Flushed and boisterous partisans will not be found arguing it on the street corners, at any period of the campaign.

It is an anomaly, of course, that a free nation should hold another should be nation as a colony, but it is the other fellow that is in bondage. What does it matter to the sovereign American, when he has got the wet and dry issue, that is dead in fact, to rage and fuss about?

PRESIDENTIAL YEAR HYSTERICS.

HERE is more than a bit of observation we find among the mail that comes to our desk and for which we commend to thoughtful reading for its plain common sense.

"Ever since we can remember—and that carries back to the days when they were carrying water to make the rivers—presidential year has been the business man's bugaboo."

"When we were young and just starting in business, we were told by old time merchants that we must look out for presidential year. Believing at that time in nearly everything told us, we began to prepare for this awful event two years before its coming. We shortened our stock, and thereby restricted our sales looking forward to something that never had come, but was 'bound to come.' And that is just what many merchants are doing today."

"Goodness knows, politicians rant and rave enough today about their particular party being the only one that can save the country—save it from what, by the way? But they are mild, very mild, in this day and age as compared to their worthy and unworthy predecessors."

"In the days gone by we worried our way, after attending a campaign meeting, gloomy and despondent, sore distressed with the thought that if our particular party did not remain in power the country would go to smash generally."

emphatically and entirely.

"Well we have lived under Republican and Democratic rule, and while we have our own particular party preference, as you have, we have arrived at the time when we realize that the average of patriotism, honesty and ability is on a fairly even keel as between the parties."

"Of course, when it comes to the matter of who is to receive the appointment of postmaster that is a horse with a longer tail, we will admit, but, as we remember it, our monthly bills reached us as promptly under a Republican administration as under a Democratic postoffice administration."

"We did not believe in the rule of kings, or in kingly succession, but, provided that we could obtain a man, that you and we and everybody approved in every way, shape and manner, we have times when we feel that we would like to have him hold the highest office in the gift of the people indefinitely."

"Just so long as we hold to the superstition that walking under a ladder will give us chilblains, or burst our appendix, just so long will we hug it to our breast that presidential years are lean business years."

NEW YORK DAY-BY-DAY

BY O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 7.—A page from the diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: Lay late and so up to talk with Inspector Joseph Egan about this crime and that and came Jack Lait and we recalled the gone days of the stately cotillion and frock coat with antiquarian delight.

This day with insolent complacency I cast my accounts and find myself in better estate than I was ashamed to near my fellows, so sat out my typewriter all the afternoon.

In the evening came Ray and Lucy Virginia and all of us to a variety hall to see a fellow juggle feathers, sofas and what not and then to the Club Lido, where when the check came I feigned sleep and thus saved a sizable sum. So home and to bed.

Not comedians of the cuckoo school of humor are receiving most of the applause in New York theatres. Ridiculous exaggeration and their wailing cry more absurd and out of proportion the better. Gallagher and Sheen were among the first of the school, but their efforts seem same compared to those now running. Nothing could be more absurd than Lewis and Dody's monotone.

"Hello! Hello!" says each stanza ends with such as this: "Hello! Hello! Hello! Hello!" All this irresponsible madness is accidental dadasim and while the vogue will soon pass it seems to me to be a welcome relief from the "wonder kiddies" we have been so conspicuous in vaudeville and revues.

The first skyscraper in New York was 17 stories high. It was designed some 35 years ago and was to house a bank. It created so much anxiety in the minds of the board of directors that it was necessary to elect another board, only the late William Vanderbilt remaining on the new board. The board resigned rather than appear ridiculous before the world by expecting a building 17 stories high to stand.

It must have been pleasant to have lived in those quaint and charming days of skepticism. Nowadays New Yorkers do not believe anything impossible. That is why 20 per cent of stock still finds a ready market.

She is an imperious beauty, the kind that in those dead days might have inspired gay blades in high color to the death. She was walking along Fifth Avenue and a hankerchief fluttered from her sleeve. One can imagine a hundred men rushing to the rescue. Instead a beefy pedestrian pointed to it with, "There's your hankerchief, lady!"—and passed on.

Those skylight attic rooms in Greenwich Village, with paper screens suggesting rooms, are going up in rentals. It used to be possible to rent one for $40 a month, but now the average rental monthly is $150. The little studio gives a halo of gentility and there are just any number of New Yorkers who leap to the opportunity to have that halo.

West 57th street is the home of the leading magazine, the Saturday Evening Post. Central Park West and Columbus Avenue is filled with studio apartments. It is not the unwashed, pauper set. It is composed of men and women who have found they can cut their hair, dress for the evening meal and still be artistic.
